

Introducing new work by UK textile artist Anna Glasbrook...

...and New York-based painter Beth Barry

Introducing Original Art by Anna Glasbrook and Beth Barry

International Artists Showcased Exclusively at Michael Hennessy Home

We are privileged to present two new contemporary artists at our retail gallery. British textile artist Anna Glasbrook makes her U.S. debut at Michael Hennessy Home and is destined to become a sensation here and abroad. Beth Barry, a member of the Hamptons New School, is an abstract painter of unusual visual and psychological depth. Each creates exquisite, colorful designs that bring vibrancy to any home or office.

Based in Bath, England, Glasbrook received the highest honors in her field of study ever in the history of Bath Spa University. She has turned her attention to creating textile panels that read as multidimensional paintings. Her use of pattern, form and color create work of vibrant complexity unlike any other artist, yet her repetition of pattern makes her work accessible.

A newlywed Michael Hennessy 'discovered' Glasbrook's work with his British wife in her hometown of Bath. At his suggestion, he encouraged Glasbrook to showcase her textiles in New York City. And it worked - three of her works were spotted in our gallery by a 'talent scout', and will be making their television debut on the CBS series 'Blue Bloods.' Michael Hennessy Home is the only gallery representing her in the U.S., so come by and see the work in person.

Born in Massachusetts, Beth Barry is a graduate of Pratt University. Her visceral, abstract work also uses color as a point of reference, juxtaposing line and form to both challenge and engage the viewer. Light yet slightly sculptural in texture, Barry's work is a beautiful accent to any décor. She has shown extensively in New York, at galleries such as Walter Wickiser, Ashawagh Hall, the Watermill Museum, Guild Hall, and Brenda Taylor Gallery. Like many of the artists featured at our retail gallery, she is part of the Hamptons New School, creating paintings that incorporate environment, color and abstract symmetry into high-impact works.

Come see these new items at Michael Hennessy Home, along with paintings, sculptures, mobiles, prints, art glass and ceramics by other respected international designers, including Eric Fischl, Jeff Muhs, Tom Slaughter, Eric Freeman, Eric Ernst, Mila Wilson and Joyce Brian.
